Introduction

The Bureau of Aging and In-Home Services under the Division of Disability, Aging, and Rehabilitative Services, a part of the Indiana Family and Social Services Administration, compiled this directory.

Sixteen Area Agencies on Aging throughout the State of Indiana are responsible for administering the individual congregate meal sites and home delivered meals within their area of service. Enclosed is a map of the State of Indiana identifying the individual Service Areas (counties) for each of Indiana's sixteen Area Agencies on Aging.

This directory lists all of the congregate meal sites throughout the State of Indiana by the individual Area Agency on Aging. The meal sites are further broken down by county, by city and in the larger cities, by zip code.

Please contact the meal site directly for hours of operation. If the listed meal site does not have a telephone number, or for more information related to such issues as program eligibility, home delivered meals, and voluntary meal contributions, please contact the individual Area Agency on Aging. The individual contact information is located at the top of each of the agency's pages.

Congregate Meal Sites provide eligible individuals a meal that meets a minimum of 33 1/3 percent of the daily-recommended dietary allowances. The meal service is in a location that promotes social interaction and is convenient to the majority of persons served. (Please refer to the Area Agencies on Aging Map for Specific Nutrition Program Contact information)

Eligible individuals include:

- persons over sixty years of age and their spouses of any age, or
- persons with disability who reside with or attend a congregate meal site with an individual over sixty years of age, or
- persons of any age with a disability living in a housing facility primarily occupied by individuals over sixty years (60) of age where a congregate meal site exists.

Eligible meal site participants are not charged any fee for the meals. The Area Agency on Aging meals program, however, does provide the meal site participant the opportunity to voluntarily contribute to the cost of the service.

Any contributions made by the participant to the Area Agency on Aging meals program are strictly voluntary. The Area Agency on Aging uses these contributions to help expand its meals program.

Home Delivered Meals offer eligible homebound individuals a meal that meets a minimum of 33 1/3 percent of the daily-recommended dietary allowances. The meal may be delivered hot, cold, frozen, dried, canned, or may be supplemental foods (with a satisfactory storage life).

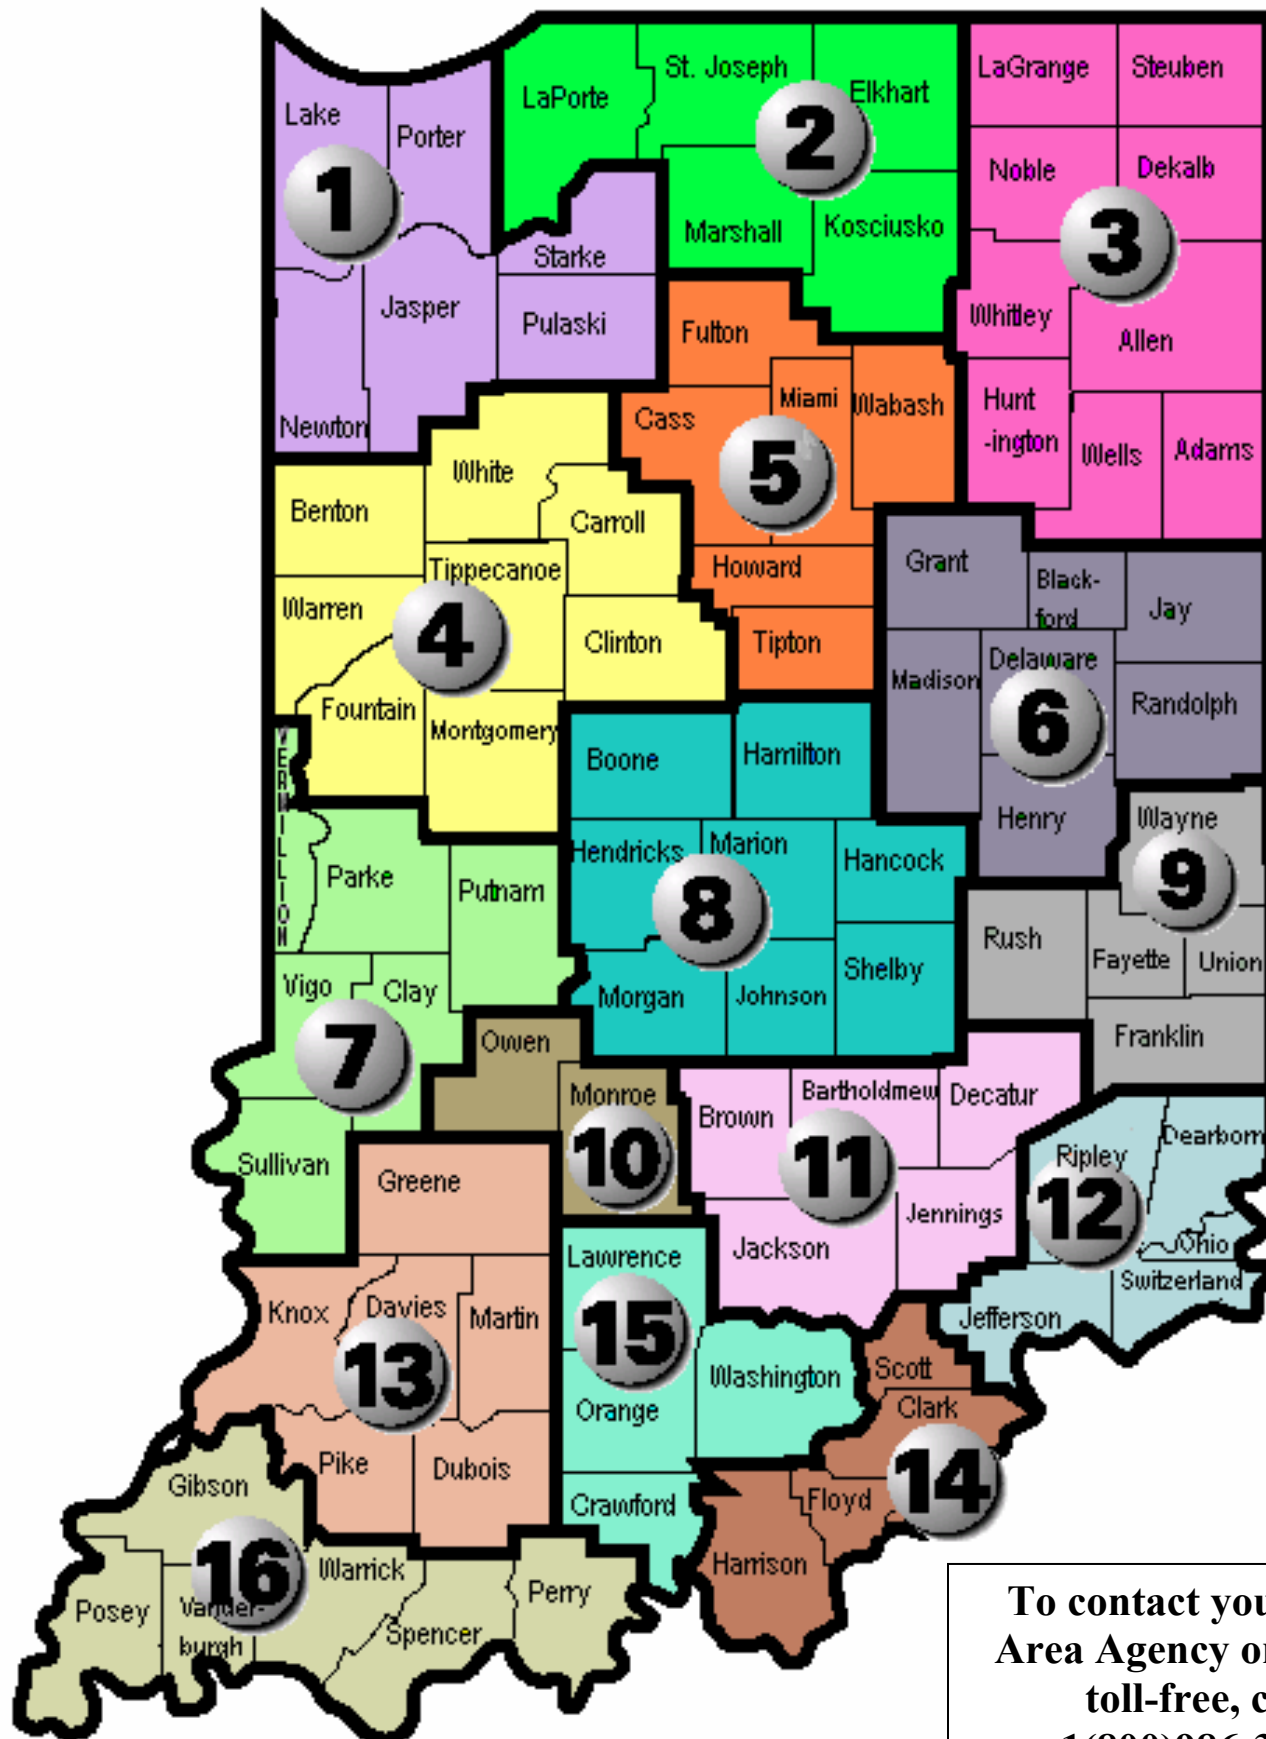

Please contact the individual Area Agency on Aging for eligibility guidelines. (Please refer to the Area Agencies on Aging Map for Specific Nutrition Program Contact Information)

Eligible home delivered meal participants are not charged any fee for the meals. The Area Agency on Aging meals program, however, does provide the home delivered meal participant the opportunity to voluntarily contribute to the cost of the service.

Any contributions made by the participant to the Area Agency on Aging meals program are strictly voluntary. The Area Agency on Aging uses these contributions to help expand its meals program.
